

STATISTICS DEPARTMENT

SEMINAR

TITLE: A WEEK IN THE LIFE

SPEAKER: Don Porter

TIME: 4:00 P.M.

DATE: Wednesday, March 1, 2006

ROOM: 140 BARDEEN

ABSTRACT:

Don Porter, one of our adjunct lecturers, left his corporate job (with Motorola) in the Chicago suburbs four years ago. He and his wife Jeanette moved to the Rock County countryside, where they grow organic fruits and vegetables. Over the prior two decades, Don worked for several Fortune 500 companies as a statistical consultant. In this presentation, Don discusses life as a corporate statistician as he presents slides from one of his many symposium "road shows". Although the methods demonstrated will be familiar to the audience, they show how a corporate statistician solves problems encountered in business. During his presentation, Don will share some insights that will benefit anybody planning a career as a non-academic statistician.
