Hello Professor Yandell,

I hope this email finds you well! I am contacting you regarding a professional opportunity that I hope you will pass on to students of yours.

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) is recruiting this fall for the Director’s Financial Analyst position, and we want to encourage your Statistics students to apply.

This unique, two-year rotational fellowship, which will begin during the summer of 2017, sits at the intersection of the federal government and the financial services industry. The fellowship is a full-time position located at the CFPB’s headquarters in Washington, D.C, where Analysts are afforded the opportunity to:

- Contribute through data and policy analysis, structured thinking, and problem solving.
- Complete rotation assignments including conducting cutting-edge economic research, developing tools to engage and educate consumers, and tracking consumer trends within the product markets we regulate.
- Drive innovation through data analysis, which serves as the foundation of Bureau activities.
- Help frame and influence substantive policy choices and agency-wide strategy.
- Communicate to senior leaders across the Bureau through written and oral presentations.

Previous Director’s Financial Analysts have used the program as a springboard to further their careers. Some graduates of the program have moved on to:

- Grad school (Columbia Economics, Harvard Business, Yale Law)
- Private industry (Amazon, Uber, Wells Fargo)
- Public sector (Department of the Treasury, NY Fed)

I hope you will take time to pass this message along. Students can apply for the program here between September 16 and September 20. A second window will be open from October 13 to October 17. Additionally, students should drop their resume under our posting on your school’s career page in order to be notified of the application opening.
Please encourage any interested students to reach out to me with any questions about the position and application process at julianna.st.onge@cfpb.gov.

Sincere thanks,

Julianna St. Onge
Director's Financial Analyst
O: (202) 435-7918 | M: (202) 746-8509
Consumer Financial Protection Bureau
consumerfinance.gov